All Major National Jewish Religious Groups Are On Record As Against Any Gambling In Synagogues

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations went on record recently as opposing the use of gambling "as a means of raising funds for the synagogue." A resolution was passed after sharp debate.

This action, as well as the adoption of other resolutions dealing with controversial questions, was taken by delegates attending the forty-fifth General Assembly of the Union some weeks ago at the Fontainbleau Hotel at Miami Beach, Florida. The Union is the Reform Jewish congregational arm of 585 congregations with 1,000,000 worshippers in the Western Hemisphere.

With this action by the union, all major national Jewish religious groups are now opposed to any form of gambling in synagogues says the New York Times. The Union's resolution declared that gambling on synagogue premises was not compatible with proper synagogue standards.

Gambling in any form is contrary to the teachings of Judaism. Lay delegates, in calling for the tabling of the amendment, emphasized that the small synagogues they represented had to resort to such games as bingo to increase revenue because of building programs and operating costs. New York and several other states have laws permitting bingo in synagogues and churches for charitable purposes.

In another resolution, the delegates voiced unanimous opposition to state legislation that would prescribe religious ... "Jewish religious ... rights any child born ... Jew ... other as 'fully Jewish.' It ... children born to mothers of their respective faiths."

However, the resolution objected to the "power of the state to carry out this religious objective." It said such a religious objective "should be striven for through the influence of each religious group upon its adherence." State interference on this problem, the resolution said, is a violation of the principle of separation of church and state.

The assembly also called for the elimination of "all restrictions and prohibitions against the dissemination of birth-control information and the rendering of birth-control assistance by qualified physicians, clinics and hospitals," said the New York Times. The delegates expressed "dismay over statements made and positions taken by a few religious groups in outright opposition to the possible nomination for President or Vice President of the United States of any person of the Roman Catholic faith."

At a banquet session, Philip M. Klutznick, a member of the union's board of trustees, who presided, declared that "the trend toward greater religiosity can be encouraged if Jewish life is mature enough in its basic attitude toward religion to accept denominational distinctions."

Sharp criticism of Jews who avoid civil rights issues by moving from cities to suburbs was expressed. The television industry was also attacked for what was termed its "failure" to enlighten people on current issues. Reform Jewish lay and religious leaders made these criticisms at seminars at the forty-fifth biennial General Assembly of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. The Union is the congregational arm of 585 congregations and 1,000,000 worshippers.

Marvin Braiterman, a Baltimore lawyer and a member of the Union's National Commission on Social Action for Reform Judaism, scored those "Jews running from the cities to the suburbs and carrying their temples with them because of a purported invasion of white neighborhoods by non-whites." This "complicates a social defeat into a moral disaster," he said.

He was also critical of those Jews who evaded "problems of juvenile delinquency, urban and human maladjustments arising out of fiscal and communal instability of American cities."

"The city," he said, "needs the active participation of a purposeful and conscientious dedication to the social creed of Judaism among more of its residents," says the New York Times. The Baltimore lawyer declared that Reform Judaism had "honed down some of its external trappings of our faith in order to streamline it for action — not social action as another kind of organizational busywork, but social action as a vehicle of the inner self."

Rabbi Edgar E. Siskin, leader of the North Shore Congregation of Israel, at Glencoe, Ill., said television, a medium which might promote the enlightenment and increase the edification of our people, is becoming a thoroughly degrading and corrupting influence." In pointing to what he described as the "moral decline in vast social and political issues," the leader said that television's programs of "violence, murder, and sex brutalize our children and de-humanize our youth."

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations reported "striking gains in depth and breadth" of Reform Judaism in the last two years in the Western Hemisphere. It said these gains were not only in religious force but also in its stand on domestic and foreign issues.

Norman Cousins, editor of The Saturday Review, declared that "scientific progress has created an even greater challenge to spiritual man than it has the political man." He said that the important questions confronting spiritual leaders were: "Can religion act

Nazi Killer Shielded By Officials And Doctors

A growing number of officials and doctors in the North German town of Flensburg are being charged with complicity in an imposture perpetrated by Dr. Werner Heyde, alias Dr. Fritz Sawade. Dr. Heyde, a German Nazi physician who is charged with war crimes, gave himself up to West German police recently after having conducted a respectable medical practice under a false name for the last eight years.

He escaped from imprisonment by the Allies in 1947, not long before he was to have been placed on trial on charges of having played a major role in Hitler's program of purifying the German race by exterminating incurable mental patients and other ill persons who were curable but were considered undesirable, says the New York Herald Tribune. The program frequently was carried out by sadistic methods.

Four years after his escape, Dr. Heyde registered under his alias at Flensburg. He soon acquired an excellent medical reputation and became a respected figure in the community.

At the time of his arrest, his real identity was thought to have been unknown to the officials and physicians with whom he worked in his special post-war field of preparing medical reports for the state insurance office. He frequently was called upon as an expert in court cases involving medical testimony.

However, following the official disclosure that his identity had been known to the presiding judge of the provincial social court of Schleswig, new charges were brought against other doctors and officials in the area. Among those ... the head of the Flensburg clinic for social medicine and his deputy were accused of having employed Dr. Heyde although they had knowledge of his alias.

Also, at least one official in the District Attorney's office at Flensburg is under suspicion of having deliberately delayed arrest proceedings against Dr. Heyde in

W. Germans Invite U.S. Refugee Paper To Send Editor Free

Aufbau (Reconstruction), the German-language weekly in New York that had once been the voice of the Jewish refugees from Nazi Germany, received a symbolic gift from the old homeland on the occasion of its twenty-first anniversary.

Dr. Georg Federer, West German Consul General in New York, invited Aufbau to send one of its editors to Germany for a six-week visit at the expense of the Federal Republic, says the New York Times. The purpose of the visit, he said, would be to study the "new democratic Germany."

Addressing the anniversary meeting in the auditorium of Hunter College, Park Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street, Dr. Federer recalled that the Nazi Third Reich had begun its drive to exterminate Jews just twenty-one years ago.

"I must confess," he said, "that the wound of humiliation — that such things could happen among my people — hurts as much today as it did then."

Dr. Wilhelm Grewe, West German Ambassador to the United States, and Avraham Harman, the

U.S. Rebuked Mrs. Meir: Does Not Identify Its Jews With Israel

A distinction between Americans of Jewish faith and citizens of Israel has been pointed out by the U.S. State Department in a note to Clarence L. Coleman jr., president of the American Council for Judaism, Inc. In a message signed by the department's assistant secretary for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs, Parker T. Hart, it was made plain that the United States does not consider its Jewish citizens as members of a different race, nation, people or religion, but as Americans.

"The United States does not condone," Mr. Hart said, "the involuntary identification of its citizens with a foreign state," reports the New York Herald Tribune.

The State Department's position was made clear following a protest by Mr. Coleman that recent United Nation debates between Israeli and Arab representatives had contained heated references to the "rights of the Jewish people."

Mr. Coleman pointed out in his letter addressed to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter that in recent discussions at the current session of the United Nations General Assembly delegates from Israel have sought to encompass in political speeches the entire body of the Jewish faith. Many of these, he added, are citizens of other nations whose representatives at U.N. headquarters speak for them with their entire approval.

Referring to an address by Israel Foreign Minister Golda Meir at the present session of United Nations, Mr. Coleman said:

"Mrs. Meir's formal and authoritative statement, which must be regarded as reflecting the views of her government, has the effect of creating an involuntary national-political association and identification of all Jews, regardless of their citizenship, with the Israeli state." In his reply, says the New York Herald Tribune, Mr. Hart stated that it was his belief that, "a common awareness exists inside and outside our country of the individual loyalty which American citizens regardless of their race, color, or creed, possess for their country and their flag."

Wanted: Auschwitz Concentration Camp Witnesses

Hitler victims who were inmates of Auschwitz concentration camp are responding to a plea by the World Jewish Congress in New York to come forward with testimony required by the West German authorities for a trial of Nazis responsible for the murder of millions of Jews. One of the wanted Nazis has been located in Argentina. He is Dr. Josef Mengele, son of a Guensburg (Germany) factory owner. Mengele, against whom an arrest order has been issued by the Lower Court of Freiburg, is a Doctor of Medicine and a Doctor of Philosophy. From May 30, 1943, to the end of the war (April-May, 1945), as SS-Hauptsturmfuehrer, SS-Standortarzt (attending physician) he was at Auschwitz.

The crimes of which Dr. Mengele is accused include the selection of Jewish camp inmates, sent to him for examination, for the gas chamber, death by shooting, or medical experiments followed by death in a gas chamber. The second group of crimes involved the direct killing of Jewish inmates by injections of phenol, benzine, or air; throwing, together with other SS-men, cans of poison gas into the gas chambers where the victims were held; throwing a newborn baby, in the presence of its mother, into a fire; killing a 14-year-old girl with a dagger. In addition, he ordered the killing of a number of Jewish camp inmates and the shooting of others, because they refused to write to their relatives that they were being well treated.

One Jewish professor of medicine was ordered to the gas chamber because he did not include certain inmates incapable of work in the lists of those to be gassed. The professor was saved from death by an SS-man. Dr. Mengele's medical experiments were of a wide variety and practically all resulted in death. The most revolting included the injection of painful liquids into the eyes of babies; mixing of poison in the food of gypsy twins or otherwise experimenting on them; causing skin infections by injections into the bodies of children and women. In all cases, the result was extreme pain and then death.

Six Nazis have recently been arrested in Germany in connection with a large-scale investigation of crimes committed at the infamous Auschwitz concentration camp. The investigation was revealed by the Chief District Attorney for Frankfurt-on-Main in a letter, to Dr. Nehemiah Robinson, director of the World Jewish Congress' Institute of Jewish Affairs, in New York, which appeals to the global Jewish organization to help trace former inmates, scattered all over the world, who could testify in the case.

Stating that he is "conducting a comprehensive investigation" of all crimes perpetrated at Auschwitz and subsidiary camps, the German official said: "Other persons have been charged but their whereabouts are unknown," the District Attorney states, adding that in view of the extent of these crimes committed at such a notorious extermination camp as Auschwitz, it had to be assumed that "many other staff members, against whom we do not yet have definite incriminatory evidence" had been "directly guilty of killings or participated in such crimes as instigators or accessories."

Witnesses are being sought in all Auschwitz cases of murder, manslaughter, deprivation of liberty resulting in death, or bodily injury leading to death. Because of the statute of limitations, the investigation does not include cases where loss of liberty or bodily injury did not result in death. The District Attorney said that gathering of evidence was hampered by the fact that former Auschwitz prisoners who could give testimony were now living in many different countries. He asked the World Jewish Congress to help locate them. Without that help and that of victims' organizations "a satisfactory investigation appears almost impossible." Auschwitz witnesses may contact Dr. Robinson at the World Jewish Congress, 15 East 84th Street, New York, 28, N.Y.; or Oberstaatsanwalt beim Landgericht Frankfurt-am-Main, Klingerstrasse 23, Frankfurt-am-Main, Germany.

Letters To The N.Y. Herald Tribune About A Gifted Boy

I read with great concern about the plight of Bobby Fischer, the gifted young contender for international chess honors. My interest is twofold: Not only is Bobby a student at one of New York City's high schools but also the cultural area in which he has displayed such virtuosity is of major importance. We are entering an era of spirited intellectual and cultural competition with the Soviet Union. It is urgent that our most talented practitioners represent us. What a dramatic episode it would be for this sixteen-year-old boy to triumph over the world's leading chess players! And I have been assured by people who know the game that this is a distinct possibility. But win, lose or draw, Bobby Fischer is entitled to his chance to play in Yugoslavia.

Towards that end, as my personal contribution, I am sending a check for $100 to Bobby Fischer, c/o U. S. Chess Federation, 80 E. 11th St., New York 3, N. Y. I am hoping that this will spur public-spirited citizens into making similar contributions towards this worth-while cultural enterprise.

Charles H. Silver,
President, New York Board of Education, Brooklyn.

In view of the letter which you published from the mother of the U.S. chess champion, Bobby Fischer, I thought you might be interested in receiving a copy of letter which I have today sent to Bobby Fischer.

Alfred B. Kastor.

Mount Kisco, N.Y.

Dear Bobby Fischer:

Your good mother has written a splendid letter, which was published in the Herald Tribune of Thursday, Aug. 6.

I have spoken to Mr. Frank Brady on the telephone, and in accordance with my promise, I am enclosing herewith a check to your order in the sum of $500 to be used in connection with your journey to the Candidates Tournament to be held in Yugoslavia, from Sept. 6 to Oct. 31, 1959.

Some months ago, Senator Javits, on the floor of the Senate, referred to me as "a public-spirited citizen from Mount Kisco," because I had sent at my own expense to every member of the House and Senate of the United States Congress, a copy of the Harry and Bonaro Overstreet book, "What We Must Know About Communism."

This contribution is sent to you in keeping with a deep belief that everything we Americans can do to show the Communist countries that we have a spiritual interest in games and all cultural activities, as well as a material interest in improving the lot of mankind, will be one more step in the direction of educating the Communist people to the proper interpretation and correct understanding of the American way of life.

With my best wishes for your success in the forthcoming tournament, I remain,

Alfred B. Kastor,
Mount Kisco, N. Y.

From Bobby's Mother

I want to thank you for your help in securing financial backing for my son Bobby Fischer so that he can represent the U. S. A. abroad the same as any other athlete, artist or other individual qualified to do so in open international competition.

I would like to ask permission of the people who contacted or will contact Bobby through the U. S. Chess Federation, at 80 E. 11th St., for what I would like to do with the funds coming in, if they agree.

Bobby does not want the money to be set aside for him alone. He does not want special consideration. He wants just the same for himself as for any qualified player going abroad to play for the U. S. A. — namely, backing for all. Therefore I would like to turn over to the United States Chess Federation whatever funds come in. The [illegible] to pay [illegible] to the [illegible] for that one tournament [illegible] the expenses of any who qualify to play abroad in future tournaments. All grants to be openly and publicly made in accordance with whatever procedure is decided on in advance by all the chess players, in a democratic and fair manner, and to apply to all equally, including Bobby. The U. S. Chess Federation to assume future responsibility for thus administering and securing contributions.

Bobby could not be happy going to any competition with special privilege. The basic appeal to him and all real chess players is the thrill of winning in a battle where everybody starts off with the same chance to win. This would have to mean no favoritism, either for him or anyone else, and everyone entitled to backing.

I hope the many persons who have wired, written and sent contributions to Bobby Fischer will feel satisfaction with this proposal. If not they are certainly able to say so. Certainly in any case a large part of the funds that may come in will have to be used for this coming tournament, the biggest event in chess next to the world championship match. But Bobby is really only one of the U. S. A.'s outstanding players.

Mrs. Regina Fischer,

in behalf of the human species itself at a time when the species is unrepresented and in danger?" and "How important is man?"

Mr. Cousins stressed that "on the level of direct action there is a real need for opportunity for a world parliament of religions that will address itself to the human situation today." In citing the increasing enrollments of Jewish children in religious classes and the establishment of new congregations, the report, however, called attention to the problem of educating parents.

It pointed to the "enthusiasm with which parents dispatch their children to religious schools," but added that "some parents when called upon to seek education at their adult level offer little enthusiasm and often active resistance even though they are pressing for more adult Jewish study courses." To cope with the problem, the Union announced that it had established a full-time department of adult education that had already issued seven syllabuses in basic courses.

A comprehensive report dealing with the accomplishments of Reform Judaism was submitted to the Union's board of trustees, says the New York Times. The report was presented by Solomon B. Elaner of Hartford, Conn., chairman of the board.

More than 3,000 delegates — the largest number in the Union's history — gathered at Miami Beach for the six-day meeting. The Union, one of the principal institutions of Reform Judaism, represents 585 Reform congregations in the Western Hemisphere having a membership of 1,000,000. The other institution is the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, which trains students for the Reform rabbinate.

In discussing education of parents, the report emphasized that "a home in which there is a creative interplay of Jewish education between the parents and the children is the prerequisite condition for the proper functioning of our program."

"The survival of Judaism," the report continued, "will not be possible if our children return to homes which are spiritually bankrupt and educationally barren. The home must become the partner in the extension of the synagogue and the religious school." More than 185,000 children, the report said, are attending classes in the religious schools of Reform Judaism, adding that "Jewish education is a psychological, emotional and religious necessity for the young generation."

The report said that [illegible] 100 synagogues had formed [illegible] own social action committees bringing [illegible] the members of congregations that are now studying the problems of world peace, civil liberties, religious freedom, juvenile delinquency and intergroup relations.

The Union, [illegible] operates five [illegible] retreats [illegible] throughout the year by rabbis, congregants and children for meetings, study sessions and services, says the New York Times. For the first time in the Union's history, the delegates were asked to take a stand on controversial social issues that include child adoption across religious lines, planned parenthood groups and gambling in the synagogues.

Royal Bank Reports Steep Rise in Loans; Assets Over $4 billion

The sharp rise in demand for bank credit by individuals, business and public bodies through 1959, and the steps taken by the bank to meet this demand, find clear reflection in the annual statement of The Royal Bank of Canada for the year ending November 30, 1959.

Total loans, excluding mortgage loans, have increased by 25%, having risen from $1,504,264,724 a year ago, to $1,888,837,071. Commercial and other current loans have increased by more than $212,000,000 and now stand at $1,522,568,647, a new year-end record in this category in Canadian banking. Of this increase approximately 86% is accounted for by Canadian dollar loans to individuals, farmers, businesses and public bodies in Canada. Mortgage loans under the National Housing Act have increased from $264,916,709 to $291,756,158. This figure represents approximately 80% of all the N.H.A. loans on the books of all Canadian banks. Call loans totalling $366,068,424, are nearly double the 1958 figure.

To provide the funds necessary to meet the demand for loans, the bank has reduced its holdings of Government of Canada and provincial government securities by over $260,000,000 and other securities by a further $91,748,183.

The strong liquid position of the bank has been well maintained, quick assets of $2,184,941,955 being equal to 56.4% of the bank's liabilities to the public.

The total assets stand at $4,129,658,661, slightly down from last year's all time high of $4,133,569,023. Deposits have also declined slightly from last year's record figure of $3,782,068,763 and now total $3,777,520,441.

Personal savings which at the end of October were some $37,000,000 higher than at the same date last year, show an increase of only $2,145,609 at the bank's year-end. The lower figure as at November 30 is accounted for by the unusually large withdrawals by the public during November for the purchase of Canada Savings Bonds.

Net profits, after provision for taxes, increased by approximately 8% and totalled $17,[illegible],140. The per share earnings amounted to $2.83 as compared with $2.79 a year ago.

This [illegible] that regular [illegible] to $12[illegible] were paid to shareholders [illegible] of 30c per share amounting to $1,[illegible] last year's rate was [illegible] per share. After payment to shareholders there remained a balance of $3,[illegible],781.

The Annual General Meeting of Shareholders of the bank will be held at the Head Office on Thursday, January 14, at 11 A.M.
